HIGH SATISFACTION RATE WITH HEARING INSTRUMENTS

Eighty-five percent of the respondents to the survey indicated that they were satisfied with the benefits they derived from using a hearing instrument. Nine out of ten survey respondents said they enjoyed improved communication in one-on-one situations with the help of a hearing instrument. More than eight out of ten were satisfied with their instruments' performance in small groups and while watching television. Seventy-five percent were satisfied with their instruments outdoors, while listening to music, during leisure activities, in the home, at restaurants, and in houses of worship.
