LINDA STONE, DMD

With a new office unlike any other in the state, Dr. Linda Stone is taking cosmetic dentistry to a new level. By blending the very latest technology with original artwork in a unique architectural setting, she has created a singular environment far from the typical dental office. "Patients have not seen anything like it," she says. "The whole atmosphere we've created was years in the making. I love what I do and wanted the office to be a reflection of me."

Specializing in all aspects of cosmetic dentistry, Dr. Stone is also moving into spa services, including facials and eventually dermal fillers. "I look at the whole face as opposed to just the mouth," she says. "Even a Rembrandt painting must work in its setting or it will look out of place, just as a beautiful smile must work with the beauty of the entire face."

Hearing Loss

Summit Hearing Aid Center LESLIE HERMAN, AuD, CCC-A

75 Summit Avenue, Summit, NJ 07901

People with hearing impairment don't have to suffer in silence according to Dr. Herman, a licensed audiologist for more than 30 years who earned her doctorate from the Arizona School of Health Sciences and her master's degree from Washington University. "If you or your loved one is coping with an unconfirmed hearing loss, get tested," she says. Based in Summit and supported by a qualified and experienced staff, Dr. Herman feels she can significantly improve the quality of life for those with hearing difficulties.

"The Better Hearing Institute has reported that the average age of first-time users of small and inconspicuous thin-tube hearing instruments is 60. These days a number of hearing instruments now have wireless connectivity via Bluetooth® to phones (for hands-free access), televisions, iPods, and computers. This is a very exciting time for personal communication, bringing those with hearing impairment 'back into the game.' "
